Linux Foundation | Senior Social Media Manager, Agentic AI Foundation Interest Letter | James Praise

Dear Agentic AI Foundation team,

I'm applying for the Senior Social Media Manager contract because I'm already one of the people AAIF's posts are written for. I use Claude Code, MCP servers and agent skills every day, and I publish 34 of the 81 agent skills I've built at github.com/realjaymes/marketingagentskills. The repository had 287 unique cloners in the last 14 days.

I grow audiences by publishing useful work on a steady schedule. The Marketing In Action newsletter reached 5,000+ subscribers in 86 countries through content, webinars, other communities and Substack recommendations, with no paid ads. At Cecure Intelligence I built a 20,000+ member community across five African countries and onboarded 10,000+ Academy users at under $0.50 each.

My own calendar runs on agents, and I make the editorial calls. Scheduled agents read X twice a day and send me candidate posts, and the ones I approve go out on four channels. Each newsletter issue becomes Substack, X and LinkedIn drafts that I review before they publish, and I make the carousels, statics and short videos myself. I'm also a Claude Community Ambassador, and I co-host Marketing & Chill in Lagos twice a year for 60 to 80 marketers.

Before applying, I asked three AI answer engines eight questions about AAIF's projects. All of them credit the foundation when asked who maintains MCP, goose or AGENTS.md. When asked which standard to use, only four answers in nine mention it, and ChatGPT still calls MCP "the open standard created by Anthropic." I built a 30-day calendar around that gap, with a video, a carousel and a Nairobi static in your design system, plus drafted replies for three live threads: https://jamespraise.xyz/work/linux-foundation-aaif/proof/

I work from Lagos. My hours overlap with Europe and Africa all day and with the US East Coast from mid-afternoon. I'd like to talk about which projects and channels you would want me to start with.

James
